DSM US Large Cap Growth Fund

December 2010

Investment Review

The Hereford/DSM Large Cap Fund NAV appreciated 4.6% for the month of December compared to a 5.5% appreciation for the Russell 1000 Growth index and a 6.7% appreciation for the S&P 500. At the end of December, the Fund was invested primarily in the technology, health care, consumer discretionary, and business services sectors, with smaller weights in the materials and industrials sectors.

During the month the Fund trailed its benchmark, on a gross-of-expense basis, by approximately 90 bps. This was primarily the result of negative stock selections in health care as well as an underweight and negative stock selections in the materials sector. Stock selections in the technology and consumer staples sectors benefitted performance. In December, the best performing positions in the portfolio were Cognizant, C.H. Robinson Worldwide, Schlumberger, Google and NetApp. McDonald's, Discovery Communications, Intuitive Surgical, Celgene and Tencent were the worst performers. During the month, the Fund exited its position in Rockwell Collins and initiated positions in Discovery Communications, Dolby Laboratories and Rovi Corp. We sold Rockwell Collins because we now believe that the commercial aerospace business may not recover as rapidly as we had expected. There is also increasing pressure on defense spending. Discovery is a pure play cable network company with approximately one-third of total revenues generated by their international business. Importantly, the company has a 50-50 joint venture with Oprah Winfrey in launching the OWN network. We have owned Dolby before, a company that develops and licenses software that enhances the audio performance of televisions, audio systems, DVD players, set-top boxes, game players, personal computers, and movie theaters. Rovi develops software solutions to create content guides for cable operators and consumer electronic operators on a global basis. Rovi will also operate as a content aggregator, delivering to the home Netflix, ESPN360, Hulu and other on-line portals.

We continue to believe that the most likely global macro-economic outcome over the next few years is the "muddle through" scenario. In the United States, annual economic growth of approximately 3% appears achievable. Currently, US industrial growth appears to be accelerating and the consumer has stabilized or perhaps even improved a bit over the past year. Nevertheless, with only sluggish economic growth, the American unemployment rate will remain elevated, and that simple fact likely means that the housing market will remain weak. In fact, recent statistics confirm ongoing weakness in the US housing market, a situation that is unlikely to change anytime soon given the enormous number of homes available for sale, as well as the "grey market" of homes ready to come to market if and when housing prices improve. We continue to be skeptical of the Federal Reserve's QEII as a recipe to create sustainable economic growth. We had expected this policy to create strong equity markets, and clearly that has been the case. Rising stock markets create a wealth effect and some consumer spending results from that, but we believe the impact is limited. Moreover, as has been said many times in the press, QEII does risk creating inflation over the intermediate to long-term time frame.

Investment Objective

The investment objective of the LCG sub fund is to provide capital appreciation principally through investments in US-based growing corporations with market capitalizations generally above 2 billion dollars. These companies are chosen for their growth prospects, attractive returns, solid business fundamentals and intelligent management. The sub fund may, on an ancillary basis, invest in US-based companies with lower market capitalizations as well as in non-US based companies. The Compartiment may invest in American Depository Receipts and American Depository Shares. The reference benchmark for this strategy is the Russell 1000 Growth Index.
